DYNA Products moves headquarters to Millington Michigan

DYNA Products, the parent company of DYNA Rentals a leading manufacturer of firewood processing equipment has chosen Millington Michigan for it's company headquarters. The existing location in Evert Michigan will remain open for service, rentals, sales, and limited production while the majority of operations will reside in Millington. "This move will not affect any of the existing rental centers including those whose fleets include DYNA processors such as the MaCallister Rental Stores in Michigan," says Nathan Miller, the managing partner of the company.

Millington is conveniently situated off I-75, a heavily traveled route improving logistics dramatically. This route reduces total travel time by several hundred miles for the majority of DYNA's customer base. The new location also provides convenient facilities for rail transport to supply product to DYNA's west coast warehouse.

While the move presents its challenges, the DYNA team is committed and enthused with potential for growth and improved customer service and support for both the firewood processor rental clients and processor owners according to Miller Daily parts orders will be processed and shipped from both Millington and Evert locations. The bigger 37,000 square foot facility in Millington presents opportunity for doing more operations in-house opposed to subcontracting as well. This will translate into better control, responsiveness and shorter lead times.

"We are excited with the changes and look forward to serving our clients better," Miller concluded, "The future looks very promising."
